

Your Next Step In Care for Our Common Home

In our “Conversations,” we have all discovered others who share some of our concerns and quests. Many suggested possibilities for further work – as individuals, as communities, as advocates for public policy, as naturalists, citizens, ethicists and philosophers, or as persons of religious faiths, in quest for social and environmental justice.

Will YOU foster some next steps for others in our Conversation? On June 12, you have opportunity to share with the group your passion or project or organization. Your name and contact information will be listed with a paragraph describing your effort, and inviting others to join you.

In taking this step, you are making a commitment to facilitating others’ participation in your endeavor. Your endeavor could take one of several forms such as recruiting volunteers for an existing organization; forming and leading a new group; leading a group on a field trip; hosting a one-time activity.

Before June 12, based on your input, the organizers of the Conversation will produce a list of opportunities for Next Steps and send it to everyone who has participated in the Conversation. At the June 12 meeting you will have opportunity to set up a display and/or give a brief presentation to the entire group about your invitation.

DEADLINE: June 5, 2016. (see example at the end of this invitation) Send this:

- Your name, email address, phone number.
- Name of your initiative, organization, or project.
- URL for any website or discussion group about this effort.
- Your role in that endeavor.
- What commitment are you looking for?
- What you are offering to persons in the Conversation to facilitate their participation.
- Why it is important towards helping the earth, its people, its creatures, its human institutions.
- Do you want exhibit space/table? Time on the agenda?
